

A refuge in the snow

For folks facing a night in the snow, a snow cave is a good option for emergency shelter — but it's time-consuming to build. If you don't have a shovel, you can use snowshoes or branches to carve out a notch in a tree well and wrap yourself in a reflective tarp.

Cross section of cave

Source: The Mountaineers

THE SEATTLE TIMES